

Rephrasing in IELTS Academic Writing Task 1

Rephrase the description under each kind of data below as much as you can. If you can't think of words which mean (exactly) the same thing, just use different grammatical forms of the words that are in the question.

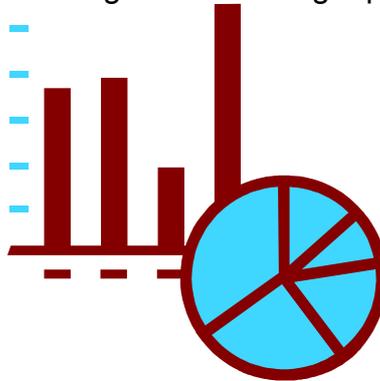

The table below gives information about the changes in population density in six cities over a 200 year period.

City	Population density in 1900 (people per km ²)	Population density in 2000 (people per km ²)	Population density in 2100 (people per km ²)
London	154	129	110
Berlin	89	105	110
Brussels	165	132	145
New York	143	201	230
Tokyo	135	270	200
Bangkok	33	340	420

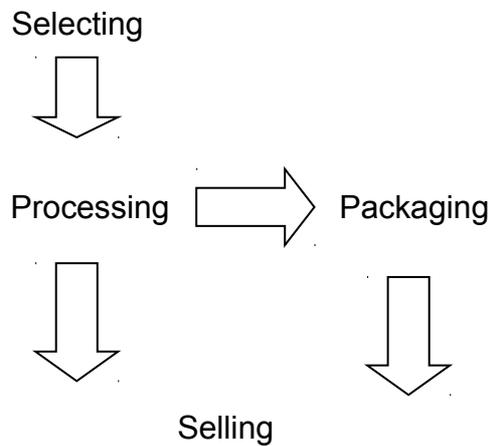

The line graph below gives information about the number of men and women in the EU taking higher degrees between 1975 and 2000.

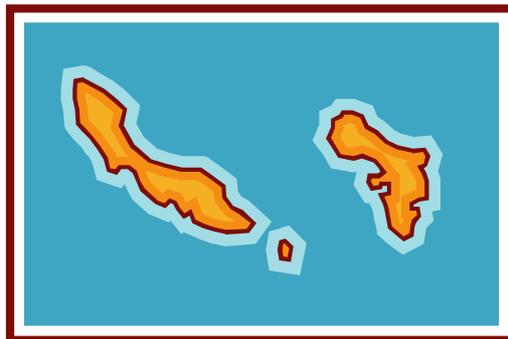

The bar chart below shows the proportion of households with pets in four different cities. The pie chart shows the main reasons given for having a pet.

The flow chart below shows how the stages in how acai berries go from the farm to shops.

The map below shows the three islands which make up the country of Toha Toha, which is located in the Pacific.

Hints

- Try to use more general words than those written above.
- If you can't think of another word, just rearrange the sentence and use different parts of speech (e.g. adverb form of the adjective given)
- Also try to rephrase any times given.
- You can also add things that are not written but can be seen in the visuals.

Look at the list of useful words on the next page for more help.

- bar graph
- centuries
- chart
- data
- diagram
- females
- figures
- four
- from.. to...
- gives
- graph
- grower
- illustrates
- illustration
- information
- island nation
- justifications
- males
- most important
- number
- on the left(-hand side)
- on the right(-hand side)
- owning
- people
- percentage
- picture
- places
- postgraduate
- presents
- qualifications
- quarter century
- represents
- situated
- statistics
- steps
- the way
- variation
- where they are sold

What can you put in the other sentences in the introduction to your IELTS Academic Writing Part One essay?

What do you need to do before you start writing? How long should you spend on that?

Rephrase this final sentence from an introduction in as many different ways as possible in the same way.

“I will describe the pie chart and then look at the bar graph.”