

Although and Even Though

Combine the sentences using "although" or "even though". Both are correct. Using "even though" adds emphasis.

1. It was raining. We went to the beach.

2. We were tired. We continued working.

3. It was getting late. We decided to stay and talk a little longer.

4. She had to drive twenty minutes out of her way. She gave him a ride home, which was very good of her.

5. It was very cold out. We decided to go for a walk in the park.

6. He planned on taking a break at five. He continued working at the computer until seven.

7. The roads were really bad, and many people decided not to drive that night. We went to the market anyway.

8. That supermarket is far away, and other markets are closer. We go shopping there anyway.

9. He does not like to fly. We were able to convince him to go with us.

10. Gina said she was on a diet. She had chocolate cake for dessert.
