Homophones speaking

Choose one of the pairs of words below. Say both words, making sure that you keep the pronunciation the same (even if they can sometimes be pronounced differently). Then say one of the two words in context in an example sentence that could not include the other word, and see if your partner can identify if it is the version from the A column or the one from the B column. Your partner will tell you if you pronounce the same words differently and/ or if your example sentence could include both, in which case you should try again.

IELTS Speaking practice

Take turns asking each other three questions from the first page above, not looking above when it is your turn to answer. You can use this page to make sure you pronounce the questions correctly if you like/ if you need to.

Underline the question stems on the previous page that could be used to make different questions, then take turns asking different questions including those words.
